(57) Abstract :
The revolutionary advent of technology has seamlessly integrated usage of smart gadgets and social media in our existing work flow practices thereby making schedule of every other individual is quite tiring and packed. As a result, we often fail to remember previous conversation, essential tasks, to-do list, important meetings, and assignments. One way is to create manual reminders or writing the summary of the conversation accordingly, but this needs human intervention. To reduce the human effort and to automate the process we have proposed an intelligent event scheduler in this project. So, in order to look back at the important points for later use we have come up with an android application which lets you to upload your call conversation and the application automatically converts the speech to text and the converted text can be view with the gist of the event mentioned in the conversation. The application also schedules a remaindering google calendar by extracting the event from the conversation
